

VOL. XXI, No. 2. {TWENTY-FIRST YEAR} GLOUCESTER, MASS., JULY 14, 1917. PRICE FIVE CENTS

Magnolia

UNDENIABLY the season is quiet; under the circumstances, that was to be expected. But unless the next two weeks show a decided improvement the season will be recorded, as far as the cottage element is concerned, the least favorable in thirty years. To say otherwise would be to deny the patent evidence of facts to the contrary, the big white and black "to let" signs plastered liberally on many of the cottages so that he who rides past may easily read.

Perhaps the trend is from the cottage to the hotel on the theory that many women seek to shunt off the cares of a household. This is a logical surmise in view of the fact that the bookings at the hotel approximates the normal at this season. The submarine scare is not an explanation else why the biggest rental season on record at East Gloucester, every cottage gone before July 1. Some ascribe it to too much midway. Perhaps the cause is temporary and will disappear by the coming of another season.

Capt. Dwight F. Davis of Co. L of the recently formed Fifth regiment of Missouri has recruited a company from the athletes of St. Louis for service in the war. Twenty years ago Dwight Davis then a young man in his teens put Magnolia on the tennis map of the country. With Holcomb Ward, a national doubles champion, he assembled some of the finest of the amateur tennis players on the Oceanside courts. The Davis family came here annually for many years with other representative St. Louis families. He may be depended if called on to give as good an account of himself on the firing line as on the tennis courts.

The Oceanside parlors will again every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons be headquarters for the women of the Magnolia summer colony for all surgical dressing work. Miss Eleanor H. Jones, chairman and Mrs. George L. Hamilton, vice-president.

Mrs. J. Theodore Heard of Louisburg square, Boston has arrived for the season at her Norman's Woe avenue cottage.

Miss Georgina Lowell of Fairfield street, Boston is at her Lexington avenue cottage for the season.

Mrs. William R. Nelson, widow of Col. Nelson the noted Western journalist and daughter, Mrs. Kirkwood have arrived at their summer house in Lobster lane.

Dr. Harry B. Shuman and family of Jamaica Plain are established for another season at the cottage corner Lexington avenue and Flume road.

Mrs. Pierpont Edwards Dutcher of Milwaukee has returned to her cottage, corner Hesperus avenue and Lexington avenues for the season.

East Gloucester

THE weather all over the Cape has been cool during the week; in fact at night time decidedly wintry. Fires in grates have been agreeable and in some cases the heating apparatus has been started temporarily. Nevertheless the people are coming in and tonight, the middle of July, finds East Gloucester with a fair quota sojourning in its midst.

That this is to be a quiet summer with much of the frivolity cut out is apparent. At the various club house centers where the women foregather, knitting for the soldiers and Red Cross work is the serious business of the hour. At Rocky Neck the Gloucester yacht club has suspended its racing schedule altogether and an element of pleasure which added much to the season's enjoyment is missed. Many of the racing boats remain where they were hauled up last fall in the boat builders sheds. This is decidedly an off year for yachting.

Mrs. E. Bradley Currier of New York has arrived at her Page street cottage for the season.

Mrs. Ralph H. Booth of Detroit has taken the Deming cottage at Bass rocks as the Demings will not be here this season.

Other absentees on account of illness will be Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Dennin of Jacksonville. They occupy Wyoming cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Dundas of New York have arrived for July at their fine residence, Souther road. They will leave in August when their place will be taken by John B. Ford and family of Detroit. Some flurry was caused the yachting this season, are having a fine time especially in developing the new boats in the "bird" class.

Next Thursday and Friday evenings, July 19th and 20th, "Me 'an' Otis," a comedy in four acts will be given in Village Hall, Annisquam, at 8.15 o'clock, under the auspices of the Ladies Sewing Circle, for the benefit of the Universalist church.

The cast of characters: — Dick Davis, a student at Hale college, fond of football and girls, Walter A. Sargent; Byron Makepeace Thornton, his room-mate, not fond of football or girls, G. Allyn Browne; Otis Tewksbury, of Perkinsville, Betty's father, Arthur F. Bragdon; Reginald Thomas, a young man of fashion, Raymond A. Sargent; Sam Scullyun, Tewksbury's hired man, Almon G. Davis; Betty Tewksbury, Otis' daughter, Agnes M. Ricker; Florence

The Annisquam Region

NOVEMBER weather has characterized the week and the nights especially have been cold. Fires and blankets have been the order of the day and night. The continuous rains of the Spring and summer has made the verdure this season especially luxuriant. Looking across the river from the Annisquam Heights, the woods of West Gloucester and Essex outlined against the foreground of beach and marsh never looked more refreshing and inviting — a prospect good to behold. The season here is developing well. the greater part of the cottages are occupied and the hotels have a fair patronage. Down at the yacht club the youngsters, who monopolize

LIKE the rest of the shore, wartime quietness has settled down on this particular section. In former summers the presence of the battleships in the harbor of refuge has lent a picturesque touch and livened up social matters. Now it is real work at sea on serious and grim duty. Uncle Sam's officers and men, than whom none finer walk the deck of a ship, may be depended upon to uphold the glorious traditions of the American navy and give a good account of themselves.

The season here is progressing fairly. Cottages are exceptionally well let and the hotels are doing an average business.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Warren of Winchester have returned to their Marmion Way cottage for the season.

C. B. Smecker and family of Boston are at ——— nd's End summer home.

George H. Robinson and family of Dorchester are at "Elmador" cottage, Eden rd., Land's End.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reynolds of St. Botolph street, Boston are at "Cliff Hall," Paradise Cliffs.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Pevear of Cambridge are at Pebble Cliff for the summer.

Harry Pearsall and family of Providence have arrived at their Land's End cottage.

Charles Lincoln Parker and family of Malden have arrived for the season at their Marmion way summer home.

John Graham Moseley and family of Columbus avenue, Boston have arrived at their "Felseinheim," their Marmion way summer home. Mr. Moseley is one of the pioneer cottagers of this locality.

TO ADVERTISERS

THE CAPE ANN SHORE, now in its twenty-first consecutive season, is the only summer resort publication on Cape Ann. It reaches every section of the cape, and is the only means of communication of the kind between the merchants and the summer residents. Therefore its value as an advertising medium is self evident. It contains each week a full and complete account of the social happenings of the summer resort section. It occupies a place by itself in the advertising field, reaching the most profitable customers along the North Shore. Advertisers should remember these facts.

Food Waste on Cape Ann

Probably no section of the country wastes more valuable food than does Cape Ann, this including the summer colony, according to the number of population.

This may seem like an extreme statement yet on analysis it holds good. Gloucester is the headquarters for a big fishing fleet the men of which are the best fed in the world and the most wasteful. It has been calculated that food is thrown over the side of the Gloucester fishing fleet in a year's time sufficient, properly applied, to feed 5000 hungry people a twelvemonth.

Cape Ann and especially the Gloucester environs is the site of the big summer hostelries of the North Shore. The waste in these notwithstanding all the efforts of those concerned is something enormous. With the food wastage of the cottagers, as a class equally prodigal in their contribution to the garbage pail, it is probable that enough good food is thrown away to feed 2000 people during a year.

A sub-committee on public safety with an investigating turn of mind recently made an analysis of the garbage pails of various families in the city. The wastage of perfectly good food was something startling, enough the committee stated, to convince them that food sufficient to feed 2000 persons a year is thrown away among the permanent residents of the city proper.

So that taking the aggregate of the wastage of the fishing fleet, the summer residents and the permanent residents as well food enough is thrown away each year to sustain nearly 10,000 persons. Think of this in one small community? This process is going on all over the United States, in lesser proportion perhaps, but nevertheless in a manner almost criminal.

The trouble is that the American people live in a land where food has been so plentiful and so easily gotten as to dull their sense of values and to stifle any action towards economy.

This was illustrated by an episode in this city when the mistress of the house admonished the cook that the authorities were keeping tabs on garbage pails and that action might be taken against those convicted of wastefulness. "Then we'll have to burn it" responded the cook in very seriousness. Verily we are the people of the "swell swill" brigade the funny story concerning which went the rounds several years ago.

As a rule hotel men, stewards and chefs calculate with scientific precision and were the problem entirely within their grasp there would be very little genuine waste in the hotels. It is a dollars and cents proposition with them. But primarily the fault for waste is that of the guest. On the plan in vogue in this country where so much is paid per week for board and lodging the guest often orders, whether or not he is able to eat all that is called for. Often perfectly good portions are returned with very little taken out but nevertheless must be scraped into the garbage receptacle and this in the aggregate means much. The cost is no more to the guest who has little or no compunction in ordering things which if tasted can hardly be eaten in their entirety.

The remedy for this, and it should be applied by law in the interest of food conservation, is that each guest pay for everything he orders. Then perforce financial reasons would entail more consideration and less waste. Or under the prevailing practice some hotel proprietor with courage might print this notice at the head of the menu: "The proprietor of the Hotel desires to call to the attention and earnest consideration of the guests of this hostelry the imperative necessity of ordering only what can be absolutely eaten. This hotel has no desire to restrict any of its guests but in the present food stringency you can do your bit even here and aid the boys in the trenches win the War for the Preservation of Civilization by using every effort to save food. Every mouthful thus saved goes to feed the defenders of our home. Therefore if you need only a half portion of any food say so. Don't order anything which you know you cannot eat. To do otherwise and spoil good food is criminal and brands the offender as unpatriotic. You can do your part in this war by a rigid adherence to these suggestions."

Supposing something like that were in black type at the head of every menu? It would have its effect. Many from mere shame would observe the injunction. A little self-denial among the over-fed wealthy and well-to-do classes would do them a wonder of good in any event.

This is no fantasy. Just such regulations and rules are in force in the public hotels and caravanseries of all the warring countries.

One of the most recent problems of importance discussed in England, among those having to do with food conditions is the imperative necessity of America realizing the supreme importance of limiting the consumption of food, for with food mainly for the boys in the trenches is this conflict to be won. This indictment does not lie against the poorer classes who, perforce, are compelled to observe rigid economies but against the well-to-do and wealthier classes who are the main offenders. A few meatless days a week in this country would do more for the health of the people than all efforts of its practising physicians. The Americans, like the English, over eat and drink.

In our advertising columns we publish the advertisement of the Gloucester committee on food conservation. It urges all summer residents who have surplus vegetable products which they cannot utilize to notify the committee. Adj. Gunn in charge of the local Salvation Army corps will see that it is properly dried and canned and distributed the coming winter among the poor people of this city. This is certainly a wise and practical move and those of the the summer colony having any such surplus can find a way to make it count in the economic scheme of things.

first of the season when it was rumored that Henry Ford himself would occupy this cottage but it was without foundation.

C. F. Farnsworth and family came this week to their Bass Rocks cottage the "Seaways" for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Farnsworth are at their cottage near Atlantic avenue.

Dr. James S. Green and family of Elizabeth, N. J., have arrived for the season at their Beach avenue cottage.

Miss Alice S. Fowler of Baltimore has the Way cottage, Page street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gilbert of Englewood, N. J., have arrived for the season at their Beach road cottage, Bass rocks.

Mrs. Charles D. Fisher of Baltimore is at her cottage on Haskell street.

Practically all of the women of the Bass Rocks colony have enrolled themselves into a Red Cross sewing brigade which meets every Monday and Thursday at the club house from 9.30 a. m. to 4 in the afternoon. These meetings have been in progress for two weeks and the average attendance is 60. A large amount of useful articles which will be thankfully received by the boys in the trenches, are being turned out showing that good old-fashioned knowledge of needlework is not a lost art with the women of the American upper classes as is sometimes asserted. Among those interested in forwarding the enterprise are Miss A. F. G. Jarvie, Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr., Mrs. William B. Campbell, Miss Emily McGuckin, Mrs. J. O. Procter, Jr., Mrs. E. B. Sargent, Misses Kate and Harriet Ellis and Mrs. E. B. Currier.

Hammond Wins Big Case in Court

The Court of Appeals of the State of Maryland, in an opinion handed down by Judge Thompson, June 27, reversed the verdict of the Superior Court of that State in the controversy rising out of an alleged conversion of stock held by John Hays Hammond in the National Cotton Improvement Company. The question as to an interest in a certain invention of Williard D. Doremus over a patent on improved ginning machinery also was involved in the suit.

The case was appealed by Mr. Hammond defendant against Addison G. DuBois. The Appelate Court holds that the plaintiff failed to make out a case of a conversion of the stock in question by Mr. Hammond, and in reversing the judgment, decline to award a new trial.

At the trial in the Superior Court a verdict against Mr. Hammond was rendered for $238,750, which was revised afterwards by the court to $123,125. The Appelate Court reverses this award and refuses a new trial against Mr. Hammond.

The Week's Racing at Annisquam

New "Bird" Boats Make Fine Showing—Yachting to be Confined to Kindergarten Classes

Unsatisfactory conditions characterized the second race of the season at the Annisquam Yacht Club Saturday afternoon. A light, fluky, variable wind was the contributing cause.

The new bird class sailed a triangular course, the Squab being the first to round the first buoy. The Arch led at the second turn. Then the Toucan had a turn in the lead when the wind died down. The centerboard of the Toucan refused to work and the Norton boat with the Cygnet passed into the leading positions and finished in that order.

There was a pretty sendoff in the Cat class, the Katchup getting the best of it. On the return the Copycat gained, but the wind petered out and the finish in light airs and against a heavy tide was slow.

Owing to the strength of the tide in the river, the dog class was not sent out. The summary:

A brisk southerly breeze, holding true to the close, gave fine racing conditions Sunday morning at Annisquam.

In the Bird class, the Hawk, Toucan, Tern and Squab got away about evenly placed and kept close together in the run down to the channel buoy. In the reach to Plum Cove the Smith boat opened up a lead, rounding the first mark with the Toucan a boat's length astern, the Tern being about the same distance behind the Toucan.

The second leg to the buoy in the bay was a reach, with the positions practically unchanged.

On the homing leg those aboard the Hawk proved superior sailors on windward work and soon ate out a good lead on the field, leading the second boat, the Toucan, by nearly five minutes at the finish.

In the cat class the course was to Plum cove and return. The Ketchup sailed by Fred Hawkins, lead the way to Plum cove buoy, being three minutes ahead of the Scat, the Katzenjammer being third. On the reach to the lighthouse the Scat went into first place, but on the dead to windward work up the river, the Catspaw forged to the front after passing the beacon with the Ketchup a good second. Carpender—De Haas

Well Known Artist Summer Resident and Prominent New York Merchant Married Thursday.

At 3.30 Thursday afternoon Mr. William Carpender a well known retired business and club man of New York city and Massapequa, N. Y., and Mrs. Alice Preble Tucker De Haas, widow of M. F. H. De Haas the distinguished marine painter were married at Magnolia by Rev. J. H. C. Cooper rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Gloucester.

The wedding took place at the summer cottage of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Henry Gilman Nichols of Boston and was extremely simple in its details the immediate relatives of the parties only being present. The bride was gowned in a white serge traveling suit. An informal wedding lunch was served after which the couple departed for a trip of a week at the end of which they will return to the Hawthorne Inn, East Glousester, where they plan to remain the rest of the summer, residing in the winter in New York.

The bride, herself an artist and miniature painter of repute, comes of distinguished ancestry. She is the daughter of the late Edgar Tucker and Mrs. Tucker of New York and the great granddaughter of Com. Edward Preble who commanded the fleet in 1804 during the war with Tripoli and a great-great granddaughter of Brig.-Gen. Jedediah Preble who fought in the French and Indian war. She is a member of the National association of Women Painters and Sculptors and a Colonial Dame.

Mr. Carpenter is a descendant of the Schuylers and other old Knickerbocker families and before his retirement from business was a member of the firm of William and J. N. Carpender. He is a member of the Union League and St. Nicholas of New York, and of the Sons of the American Revolution. He is a widower his first wife being Miss Ella Floyd Jones of New York.

Death of Eleanor Weare Pearson

She was born in Chicago 45 years ago of distinguished New England ancestry and was educated in Boston, later going abroad studying in the art centers of Europe. She came to East Gloucester some 20 years ago and with her sister established the Steerage studio and later, the Barn studio in Ledge lane.

During her residence here, eventually making the place her permanent home, she made many friends. She was a woman of broad culture and high ideals, of a generous and sympathetic nature which brought her the respect of all. The funeral Tuesday afternoon from the home of her sister, Miss Mary E. Pearson, was attended by a large number. Rev. Mr. Cooper, rector of St. John's Episcopal church officiated. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.
